Contest-The New York Athletic Club' Attempt to Get the Dauntless Crew-Mor About Pole - Vaniter Buxter's Record-Breaking-Sexton's Views on Matches.

T is not over pleasant to referee a four or six round glove contest Unless one man is clean knocked out there is sure to be dissatisfaction. There are so many ways of judg. ing and it is so difficult to tell the relative value of the hits. One prominent judge of prize-fighting says no man should be published as beaten by another in a four-round go unless really licked, for in a ring fight one man may be almost knocked out and yet. by a sudden rally, win the battle. Another says if two men agree to box four rounds, the one that gets the best of it, no matter how slightly, is entitled to a victory. The boxers know about all the good judges going, and can pick exponents of whichever of these two schools they like: but where the real difficulty comes in is in conscientiously judging's bout, part of which has been in favor of one man and part in favor of his opponent. and in deciding which puts in the telling blows. This was well illustrated at the Manhattan Athletic Club's entertainment last blows. This was well illustrated at the Manhattan Athletic Club's entertainment last Saturday night. The six-round bout between feather-weights McGill and Davis was all in favor of McGill the first three rounds, even the fourth round, entirely for Davis in the fifth, and the last round was in favor of Davis the first half, and about even the remainder. Davis would surely have won in another round or two. The World's and The Evening World's sporting representatives were the judges, and the old time amateur heavy weight champion. Harry Buermyer, was the referee. The World's man voted in favor of Davis and The Evening World in favor of Davis and The Evening World representative thought that McGill scored the most points in the six-round contest, but wrote: "A draw or another round." An extra round was the only absolutely fair way of reaching a decision, but it could not be ordered so. Buermeyer gave McGill the bout. The verdict was undoubtedly a fair one, as far as scoring the most clean hits went, but boxing isn't learned to develop "tapping." Davis's rights on McGill's ribs did far more damage than Benny's glove flicking on Davis's nose.

The New York Athletic Club made strenu-The New York Athletic Club made strenuous efforts not long ago to absorb the old Dauntless Rowing Club. They wanted to take over the champion eight-oared crew in a body, together with a dozen or so of the other best men in the club. They were so anxious to get them that it was represented that they stood ready to buy out the club's plant at a round sum, thereby, of course, terminating its existence. The Dauntless boys acknowledged their thanks at the compliment, but refused to go into the big club, saying that the old blue and white flag was what they had grown into championship form under and that was good enough for them as long as they were able to pull a boat.

Sticklers for exactness in amateur athletes Sticklers for exactness in amateur athletes still deny Pole-Vaulter Baxter's right to his new record of 11 feet 5 inches. They claim that even if the pole the champion vaulted with did break it was a try, and the feat should not be allowed a record because it was not accomplished in one of three attempts. Prof. Goldie says he lowered the bar a quarter of an inch after the champion took one try with his new pole to see if it suited him and that Baxter went over the bar on the third attempt. When it was suited him and that Baxter went over the bar on the third attempt, when it was placed at 11 feet 5 inches. There is no particular reason for restricting an athlete to three "trys" when going for a record. Athletic rules are silent on this point, although they expressly say that in a competition a contestant is "out" after three failures. An amateur who has pluck enough to try for a record has a hard enough job without being b unpered with such a limited restriction as the three trys rule. Six trys would be ample, as few men have endurance enough to do much after that. They get too ough to do much after that. They get too

"I don't play billiards for love," says Billy Sexton, "only for dust, and I for one got enough of five-night play in Washington. Unless the players in a contest that is to last a week chance to win and lose so as to keep the result in doubt the interest soon ceases and then there is not a corporal's guard present. If one wins the first night and the other the second then the public cries hippodrome." The enterprising Manhattan Athletic Club has just added a new cross-country team to

HIS SECRET.

BY ALICE MAUD MEADOWS.

[Continued from Tuesday's EVENING WORLD.] S the detective spoke presented ?" "But I do," the cashier answered.

"The letter of advice came this morning the check was presented and paid about an hour ago." "Good heavens! and the amount?" "Ten thousand pounds."

"Ten thousand pounds! How could you

"We could not do less; we had the letter of advice written upon the Earl's private paper, and with the Dolan postmark. So far as we could tell, everything was perfectly gowing.

"Were you on the piatform when the first train came in from town?" he asked.
"Yes, sir," the man answered.
"Did any one come by it?"
"Oh, yes, sir! There's always a good many by that train; the country folks bring their vegetables up from the village to sell."
"Did Mr. Selwyn come by the train?"
"No, sir; there was only third-class pasgonuine."
"How was the money paid?"
"In bank of England notes."
"You have the numbers?"
"Yes, but that is little good; the notes will probably be cashed abroad."
"Can you describe the man who cashed them?"
"Yes; a tall growth." "at's curious," the detective muttered, walking away in the direction of the Castle, "very curious, but I cannot be mistaken, it's as clear as daylight."

He went more slowly, turning things over in his mind. When he reached the Castle he went straight to the Earl's study; the Earl was sitting there and welcomed the detective gladly.

Yes; a tall, stout, fair man, with sandy

It did not strike you that he was diso, we never for a moment thought that anything was wrong."

"But surely the amount is unusually large." "But surely the amount is unusually large for you to pay without due notice?"

"Yes, but the Earl's letter, or rather the letter which we supposed and had every reason to believe came from the Earl, apologizes for wanting so large a sum at a minute's notice; but you shall see the letter."

He left the counter and came back in a moment with the letter, which he handed to Mr. Foster.

The detective looked at it and wondered

The detective looked at it and wondered.

SPORTS OF FIELD AND RING.

the rapidly increasing number of followers of this healthful pastime. P. D. Skillman is the captain, with Al. F. Copeland vice-captain. Besides seven chases of its own this club will compete at the New York Athletic Club's championship meeting on Nov. 18, and the Spartan Harriers' open amateur handicap steeplechase from Mount Vernon on Nov. 20. On Thanksgiving day the team will go on a cross-country walk.

WORK FOR HOMELESS GIRLS. Scheme of Operation of the Home at 27 St.

chine sewing. It is a branch of the Children's Aid Society. It has branch of the Children's Aid Society. It has been in existence twenty-five years, first at Canal street, then at Bleecker street and lastly at St. Mark's place.

It is strictly undenominational. The Rev. Mr. Boone, a Congregational minister, preaching to the children Sunday mornings in Winter.

Mrs. Hurley, matron of the Home for the past fifteen years, showed an Evening World reporter over the house. "Any girl who comes to the door and says she is homeless is received," she said. "Occupation may be found for her the next day. Those who board in the house, which will accommodate fifty-two, pay $1.50 a week if they have situations which conveniently enable them to do so; otherwise, they pay nothing. The work they do in the house is all the compensation given. Two or three times only in my term of office girls have come with the intention of inveigling away the other girls. They were inveigling away the other girls. They were promptly detected and sent away. Only the cook and the housekeeper are regularly hired servants."

The sewing-machine girls do not live in the house, but come one hour or two hours a day to learn the use of the machine. Girls from eleven years of age to twenty-five are received. The average learn in two weeks, although some bright ones master it in a few days. They then get work at from $2 to $6 ervants.

The ground floor is a suite of two rooms and an alcove. Twenty-six sewing machines of four varieties fill the second of these. Two I rish girls, sisters, were in the alcove hemming. The reporter, although not an adept at hemming, thought the work fair. A Chinawoman is an old stand-by of the place, Miss Beeching has charge of the sewing-machine department. The girls bring their own work.

own work.

Mrs. Hurley then took the reporter to the second story, the dressmakers' department. It takes girls six months to learn here, and takes girls six months to learn here. It takes girls six months to learn here, and then they go to dressmakers as "improvers." That means they can still learn something in the mysteries of the art. A dozen girls were sitting around doing different parts of dresses, and two or three handsome gowns hung over chairs. Mrs. McAlpine teaches the girls. The dressmakers stay in the house, but are given only their board,

The laundry department is thoroughly house, but are given only their board.

The laundry department is thoroughly equipped. It takes a year to be graduated as a laundress. The girls there look on themselves as the swell element in the house.

selves as the swell element in the house. Half-a-dozen girls were rubbing wet clothes up and down a zine board. A mound of light snowy foam rose from each tub. The girls were pretty, healthy and gay.

In the ironing-room Mrs. Hurley asked Nellie to give an exhibition polish. Nellie is an ample blonde and the boss polisher. She is a fairy-like thing of 220 pounds weight, and when she poises her avoirdupois on a small flat-iron and runs it over a shirt collar, that collar must shine or be ground out of existence. The drying-room is as hot as a vapor-bath.

existence. The drying-room is as hot as a vapor-bath.
Good discipline is maintained in the house. The children are not allowed out at night, and boarders who pay are allowed out during the day, while those supported by the house are let out on Sundays,
For breakfast the menu is tea, bread and butter, and porridge. The porridge is docked for the supper. The dinner on Sunday is roast meat; Monday, meat stew: Tuesday, liver and bacon ("They take that," said Mrs. Hurley); Wednesday, pork and beans ("They take that, too"); Thursday, meat stew; Friday, fish; Saturday, meat soup. Sometimes patrons send in apple sauce and little dainties. So here is an opportunity for beneficence.

LOUNGERS ON THE WINDSOR SOFAS.

Russell Sage, solemn and sagacious. Col. Greene, somewhat pessimistic on Alfred Sully, confident of a rise in Richrailroad earnings.

"Wash" Connor, somewhat bullish, but studious of the tape. Judge Fitch, who says he never speculates, but is fond of talking stocks.

John Slayback, cautious about prognosticating what the morrow may develop. Dr. Norvin Green, absolutely ignorant (to take his own word for it) of telegraph deals.

Personal Supervision

There was the Earl's curious hand copied exactly. The letter ran as follows:

exactly. The letter ran as follows:

Siz: I shall esteem it a favor if you can cash check for 210,000, which will be presented curing to-morrow (Wednesday), as presenter leaves England in the evening.

The amount is, I know, unusually large to be paid without a notice, and if it is inconvenient for you to cash it to-day, pray leave it; upon the other hand, it will greatly convenience me if you can honor it. I am, gentlemen, yours obediently, DOLAN.

" Well, the cashier said, " could we have well, the casher said, could we have done otherwise than we have done?"

"I suppose not," the detective answered;
"but to think of his getting the better of me like that! Well, I shall never call myself clever again."

After leaving the bank Mr. Foster jumped

The train was just starting when he reached the station, but he man god to scramble in; and after a journey which seemed endless—and after a journey which seemed endless—so anxious was he to reach the end of it-the engine slackened speed and pulled up at

"Were you on the platform when the first

"It's curious," the detective muttered, tective gladly.

"Ah, Foster!" he said, "I'm pleased to see you; I was beginning to get a little anxious, you disappeared so mysteriously last night."

"I was tracing my clue," he answered, smiling a little. "May I ask if you have drawn any large checks within the last day or two?"

bit frightened.
"Not one for £10,000?"

No," the Earl answered, looking the least

"Dear me, no; why do you ask?"
"One for that amount signed with your signature has been presented and cashed."
"Great heavens:" starting up in his chair sengers.

He jumped out and sought the TITUS GETTING BALD. Hair Restoratives for Pampered Dogs and Sometimes Soda-water, too.

"Have you any hai restorative?" she asked in a clear soprano voice, while an evision

"Yes, miss," said the clerk with a glance at the fluffy bang and abundant locks of the damsel. "Here is a mixture which I can

It must be the very best. Titus's hair is damsel. "Here is a mixture which I can recommend."

"It must be the very best. Titus's hair is coming out and it worries me a great deal," she said with a little droop to her mouth. "I don't know what the matter is. He is too young to be getting bald," she continued.

"Well, I think your husband will find relief from this," said the clerk, throwing much sympathy into his high-salaried smile.

"My husband." schoed the girl. "It isn't for my husband if to say: "What's the matter with her dog?"

Titus wagged his tail, as if to say: "What's the matter with her dog?"

There was a small patch on his body, too far back for him to see it well, where the hair had departed, leaving his skin exposed to all the vigor of a New York winter.

"Rub it on well," said the clerk, as the damsel paid him $1 for a small bottle. "It will renew the hair."

Some of the pet dogs of women are so overfed that their hair falls out. This is not noticeable in the long-haired Skye and Yorkshire terriers. Their hair covers a bald spot. But the larger dogs with shorter hair show a spot, and it does not add to their beauty.

"I have had several calls for hair restoratives for dogs," said a clerk in another drug store. "They get the mange, or are overfed, and their hair drops out. It breaks the women all up to have a dog with a big spot on him. They'll do anything for a dog.

"Sometimes they come here and get chocolate sods. They take some, then give some to the dog, and drink out of the same glass afterwards without a wince. They couldn't do that if a newsboy had taken a drink out of it. Oh, they are good to their dogs, you bet. A hair restorer works on a dog as well as it does on a man. That is, sometimes it is effective and some timesit isn't. The women who run expensive dogs think nothing of money or trouble to keep them in good order."

HOW TO COOK THAT RAREBIT.

HOW TO COOK THAT RAREBIT.

A Captain of Police, a Dyspeptic, and Bill

Editor of The Evening World: Mrs. R.'s letter in THE EVENING WORLD of this date caught my eye, and nothing would satisfy my wife but that I should write you at once. If there is anything in the wide world more mis-cooked than the Welsh rarebit I don't know what it is, If Mrs. R. wants to keep Mr. R. at home, following recipe will do it: "Golden Buck," which is an improvement on the rarebit, is made as follows: Cheese sufficient for a slice of toasted bread; melt with a little ale; beat one egg with a small glass of sherry wine; when the cheese is melted pour in the egg and wine; let both come to a boil and pour over the toasted bread; mustard or Worcestershire as you like. A bottle of Bass's ale to "wash" it down. Very truly, &c.,

JOHN P. PINKERMAN, Captain of Police.

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 94.

Editor of The Evening World, Mrs. R. asks how to make a Welsh rarebit that vill tempt her husband to remain at home instead of going to a chop-house for his delicacies. When I agreed to answer these queries about cooking I did not think that any one would ask me so soon how to make a rarebit. I thought any one knew how to make these plain dishes. If I had been asked to explain how to make a mince pie or a slumber robe I could have done so, but questions like the above should be referred to the man who does the plain cooking on the paper. BILL NYR. A DYSPEPTIC'S ADVICE.

Editor of The Evening World : Tell Mrs. R. that, for mercy's sake, if she loves her husband and has any regard for his friends, not to cook any rarebits at all. They nearly killed A DYSPEPTIC. Brooklyn, Oct. 25.

Answers to Correspondents. M. C .- The Great Eastern is the largest vesse F. H. H.—Gen. Grant died at Mount McGregor July 24, 1885.

J. G. S.—You will find the statistics you desire in the WORLD ALMANAC; price 25 cents. A. B.—"If a young man over twenty-five years old is living with his mother, paying board, can his stepfather put him out?" Is he strong enough?

stepfather put him out?" Is he strong enough?

J. C. W.—The laws of New York permit a man to have as many wives as he chooses, provided he marries them in the manner prescribed by law. By special statute passed in 1878, a man is permitted to have two or more wives, or a woman two or more husbands, under certain conditions, and to live with both at the same time. Polygamy and polyandry were made lawful in New York by the Court of Appeals in 1883.

M. N.—The Cincinatti Commercial's claim upon the word "boodle" is absurd. It is to be found

M. N.—The Cholinait Commercial's claim upon the word "boodle" is absurd. It is to be found in either of the dictionaries spelt "bodle." It has been used in its present sense over thirty years, and it is to be found in the "Thieves' Lexicon," published in 1858. "Boodle: counterfeit money. Boodle-carrier: one who carries the counterfeit money and hands it out, one bill at a time, to those who pass it." and growing very white, "this is terrible; but the letter of advice? I forbade them to cash any checks without receiving that."
"The letter of advice, written on your own private paper, was received."
"Is it possible! Mr. Foster, what is to be done?"

Mr. Foster sat down.
"The only thing to be done," he said, "is to catch the perpetrator of these forgeries, and I believe that I can put my finger upon him."

"You do!" surprised; "then pray do not lose any time. Who is the man whom you

"I must tell you, I suppose, and it will matter little, as all the world must know soon; but I shall shock you terribly."
"Well?" impatiently.
"The man," the detective continued, slowly, "is, as I have always thought, one who lives in the best society, one who is universally respected, one who is an intimate friend of yours."

"An intimate friend of mine!" the Earl

"An intimate friend of mine!" the Earl repeated. "A forger an intimate friend of mine; that is bardly likely."

"The world does not know him as a forger," the detective said, slowly. "The world knows him as Max Selwyn, the great author!"

Had an corthogale wild all.

Had an earthquake suddenly convulsed the earth all around him the Earl could not have looked more shocked and upset; for a moment he seemed bewildered, then anger succeeded surprise and he turned furiously to Mr. Foster.

"How dare you say such a thing?" he said,

fiercely—"how dare you?"
"I say what I believe to be the truth, what my investigations have almost proved. I am not to blame if the news is unwelcome. Histor to me a moment, you owe me at least hearing,"

The Earl did not speak, and the detective went on:

"You are not the first person," he said,
"who has given me the job of tracing this forger. I was employed once by a Russian Count, whose family jewels had all been removed, by means of a forged note, from his banker's, and of course never seen again; and once before by an Englishman of great wealth, who had lost many thousand pounds through this forger; but though I
through this forger; but though I wealth, who had lost many thousand pounds through this forger; but though I tried my best I was unsuccessful. All I learned in my investigations was that the man who presented the checks and who took away the jewels had wonderful large deep blue eyes; in other respects the individual's appearance seemed to change; he would disguise, of course. Well, time went album by his side. I watched him put it friend of yours.

TOLD AT AFTERNOON TEA.

THE LIST OF OCTOBER BRIDES STILL GROWING LARGER.

Mr. Franklin S. Wilson and Miss Lillian A. Plympton Married at the Central Congregational Church-Mr. Frank Culyer to Wed Miss Minute F. White This Evening -The Weeks-Mataran Wedding.

EST Fifty-seventh street was ablaze with light and noisy with the rumbling of carriages last evening at 8 o'clock when the marriage of Mr. Franklin S. Wilson and Miss Lillian A. Plympton took place at the Central Congregational Church, The Rev. William Lloyd officiated, assisted by the Rev. Van Pelt. The front and high corsage. The veil was of tulle. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses. Miss Ida Haughey was the maid of honor. She wore draperies of lemon tulle over a watered silk slip, with trimmings of duchesse lace; she carried a bunch of yellow roses. Mr. Kline, Mr. Laimbeer, Mr. W. H. Lloyd and Mr. F. C Lloyd were the ushers. The reception after the wedding was at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Plympton, in West Fourteenth street. The house was decorated in bright autumnal colors with decorated in bright autumnal colors with yellow chrysanthemums and other flowers. Dr. Burchard, Capt. and Mrs. Haughey, Mr. Bliss Hart, Dr. and Mrs. David King, the Rev. and Mrs. Van Pelt, Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Brown, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Wilson, Mrs. Arthur Hearn, Mrs. T. Miller, Mr. Hearn, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert, Mr. and Mrs. Frement, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lord, Miss Lord, Mr. and Mrs. Lugella, and Mr. and Mrs. Tompkins and Miss Tompkins and many others were there.

others were there.

The marriage of Mr. Frank Culyer and Miss Minnie F. White will take place this evening at 8.30 o'clock at the home of the mother of the bride, Mrs. Margaret White, 141 East Thirty-third street. The bride will wear a white faille Francaise with train, V-shaped corsage and trimming of duchesse lace. The tulle veil will be secured with diamond view. others were there.

mond pins.

Mrs. Sprague, of the Navarro Flats, 145
West Fifty-eighth street, will give a reception this evening in honor of the marriage of tion this evening in about her daughter.

The Morningside Tennis and Bowling Club will give a dance at its club-house, 384 St. Nicholas avenue, on Monday evening,

The Morningside Tennis and Bowling Club will give a dance at its club-house, 34 St. Nicholas avenue, on Monday evening, Oct. 31.

Mr. B. S Weeks and Miss A. Mataran, eldest daughter of the late Henry Mataran, will be married at 8 o'clock this evening at the home of the bride's mother, 104 West Thirty-eighth street. There will be no bridesmaids, but the bride will be attended by her sisters, the Misses A. and H. Mataran. The best man will be Mr. W. A. F. P. Mulford. Mr. J. P. Faure, Dr. A. H. Small, Mr. J. A. Townsend and Mr. E. Quist will be ushers. Mayor Hewitt, if in good health, will unite the couple. Mr. and Mrs. V. M. Moore, the Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Rylance, the Rev. Dr. Yarrington, Dr. and Mrs. George E. Belcher, Mr. and Mrs. Charles De Hart Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Carlyle Weeks, Mr. and Mrs. H. Texier, Mr. and Mrs. Gross, Commander H. L. Sprague, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Allen, Mr. F. S. Wait, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Coleman, the Rev. B. Morgan, Major and Mrs. W. H. Kipp, Mr. S. Hyatt, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Delamater, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Fowler, the Rev. and Mrs. W. G. T. Shedd and very many others will be present.

Miss Julia Thomas has returned to her home, 32 West Twenty-sixth street, after a summer in London and Paris.

Mrs. William M. Oothout has returned to this city after as summer passed with friends in the northern part of the State.

Mrs. William M. Oothout has returned to this city after an absence in Berlin of several years. She will receive her friends in her new studio, at 17 West Twenty-sixth street, Senator and Mrs. John C. Jacobs have left the Metropolitan Hotel for their new home, 97 Joralemon street, Brooklyn, where they will receive their friends on Tuesdays during the winter.

Ah entertainment will be given to-morrow evening at the Washington Haights Ath.

the winter.

Ah entertainment will be given to-morrow evening at the Washington Heights Athenseum in aid of the Manhattan Hospital.

The marriage of Mr. Pedroso and Miss Camille Berghmann at Torresdale, near Philadelphia, to-day, will be attended by many friends from all the principal cities, Mr. Pedroso and his bride will live this winter with the mather of the high Mrs. Macallie with the mather of the high Mrs. Macallie. with the mother of the bride, Mrs. Macallis ter Laughton, at her home in Washington.

Take Rikers' Callsaya Tonic

on, and you employed me once more to discover this man; upon that I made a list of all the men who had had their names forged. I found most had been victimized to a large extent Mr. Max Selwyn only had loss out little, £200."

"Surely that should tell you," the Earl said, quickly, "that he cannot be what you say he is! A man would scarcely commit a forgery upon himself."

"There are such things as blinds," the detective said, smiling. "I came down here—I

"There are such things as blinds," the detective said, smiling, "I came down here—I found that this Mr. Selwyn was a friend of yours. I asked if he would not help you to find this forger; you told me that he had the greatest objection to hunting any one down. I then guessed, by putting two and two together, that Mr. Selwyn and the forger had met at some time and that, though he had suffered through him in a small degree, he was yet unwilling to bring him to justice. I was anxious to see this Mr. Selwyn—I thought I might be able to learn something from him. You gave me the opportunity wished for:

You gave me the opportunity wished for; you took me to spend an evening at his house. Directly he came forward to greet us my eyes were caught by his eyes—wonderfully, pirectly he came forward to greet us my eyes were caught by his eyes—wonderfully darkly, beautifully blue. Something seemed to whisper to me at that moment that the forger himself, and not the forger's friend or acquaintance, stood before me. I looked down at his hand. I saw as I expected—long, slender, pliant white fingers, taper pointed, with a slight nervous movement. I felt almest sure then.

"Next came the episode of the album. You asked for it—you had written your name in it, with your usual signature attached—other men had done the same, great and wealthy men slways. Miss Honor, who I am certain knows nothing of her father's mode of making money, wasted their literary productions—Mr. Selwyn wanted their signatures to copy. It was a clever—an artful way of getting them, I never knew of a better.

"Mr. Selwyn had his suspicions of me, and so the book could not be found, but I was determined to see it. I was almost sure that I should find all the names of the victims which I had on my paper in that book. When no one was looking I unlatched the window, which had been shut for the night; and after we had driven away from the Hollies some little distance I slipped from my seat and came back to that window.

"To make a story short, I saw Max Selwyn

IMPORTING SHETLAND PONIES.

Droves of Them Brought to This Country Every Year. N the steamer Chrys

plump, hardy, shaggy little Shetland ponies. The trade in Shetlands has assumed larger proportions these past two years. About nine hundred or a thousand are brought here annually. The Arrow line takes them on at Dundee, its last port in Scotland. Many of the ponies are sold by auction when they ar-the ponies are sold by auction when they arrive, others are sent West, and numbers go to Long Island. They fetch about $50 apiece, not as much as they formerly brought. This is the last trip for the ponies until next May. They were stalled in the alleyways on the deck which are covered in. When their stalls had to be cleaned the ponies were turned loose on the deck. Their legs were washed before they were put back. They stood the voyage well. Ten of them got away with a bale of hay on the trip. The feed is supplied by the exporters.

There is a duty on Shetland horses. The stallions and mares are admitted free if an affidavit has been procured from the American Consul at Leith that they are intended for breeding purposes. No stallion is over brought who is not intended for breeding. The duty is about $5 a head. Ninety-sk is a large consignment. About fifty is the average.

The duty is about $5 a head. Ninety-six is a large consignment. About fifty is the average. The steamers bring them every trip from May to December. Some of the ponies are blooded. There were four in this lot. A fine pony sold for $200.

Sometimes Iceland and Welch ponies are brought over, but they are bigger and not as pretty as the Shetlands. The ponies are gentle, but sometimes try to relieve the tedium of the voyage by chewing up their neighbors. The dense ignorance of their island youth will be dispelled for many by a circus education. They are great pets with children. Some of them are hardly larger than a Newfoundland dog.

Did Not Know Him. [From the Pittsburg Chronicie.]
Pirst Bostonian—Who is this man Gilbert ?

Second Bostonian-Gilbert 7 First Bostonian—Yes; I heard somebody to-day say something about Gilbert & Suilivan, and it's the first I've heard about John L. taking in a part-

Iriah Wit. How shall we dispose of the dead? asks a recent writer. By keeping them alive, was an Irishman's grotesque reply. Provided the individuals in question are afflicted with any form of Nerve or Brain disease, Krhaustien, Hysteria, Neuralgia or the like, Kootel OATS ESSENCE is the best anti-graveyard remedy known.

AMUSE ENTS.

E DEN MUSEE, 28D ST., BET, 5TH 4 6TH AVES.
OPEN FROM 11 TO 11. SUNDAYS, 1 to 11.
GEN. CUSTER'S LAST BATTLE.
GIRON'S GREAT PAINTING, "DEUX SŒURS."
Concerte daily from 3 to 5 and 8 to 11, by MUNCZI LAJOS AND HIS ORCHESTRA.
TO-MORROW CHURSDAY), OCT. 27.
Opening of A. Le Moult's great

FLOWER SHOW.

FOR ONR WEEK ONLY.

NO ADVANCE IN PRICES.

Admission to all, 50c., children 25c.

AJEEB—The Mystifying Chess Automaton. CHICKERING HALL.

CHICKERING HALL.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 26, AND FRIDAY, OCT. 28.

LAST TUA MATINEE,

SATURDAY, OCT. 29, AT 2.

MR. MAX HEINRICH Barbone.

MR. R. GOLDBECK, MR. F. KLAHRE and MR.

ALEX. LAMBERT, Plannets.

MR. W. THAULE, Musical Director.

Admission, $1.

DOCKSTADER'S. THE COARSE HAIR:

Or, THE NORTHERLAND SISTERS.
Or, FUN ON THE M. M. 11. HT S.
Last night "FALL OF NEW BABYLON."
lings, 8.50. Saturday Matinee, UNION SQUARE THEATRE J. M. HILL, Manager, FIFTH WEEK.
SUCCESS BEYOND PARALLEL, The Comedians, ROBSON & CRANE, La Brood Son & CRANE,

THE HENRIETTA Evenings at 8.15; Sat. Matinee at 2. Carriages at 10.45.

14TH STREET THEATRE. Cor. 6th avo Matinees-Wednesday and Saturday, World—Instant success, Herald—Brilliant and forcible, Journal-Sourse a bit, Sun-Tenderness and strongth, Fimes—Merit and eleverness. Star—A great hit.

RUBÖLPH: STAR THEATRE.

Broadway and 13th st.

Every evening This Week and Saturday Matinee.

JOSEPH JEFFERSON

As BOB ACRES in THE RIVALS.

Monday, Oct 31: Tomaday, Nov. 1: Wednesday, Nov. 2,

THE CRICKET ON THE HEARTH

LEND ME FIVE SHILLINGS.

STAR THEATRE, Monday, Nov. 7, Mr. HENRY HAVING, MISS ELLEN TERRY and the LYCEUM COMPANY in FAUST."

BUNNELL'S 728-30 BROADWAY. Admission, 25c.
LONDON Sacred Hair, Family. Continuous Entertainment, MUSEUM. The Greatest Show. Noon till 11 P.M.

would be a day or two after death."
"This is terrible!" the Earl said. "It seems impossible that it can be true, and

He paused; the door opened, the subject of their conversation entered. He was look-ing a little pale and tired, but handsome as "Good morning," he said, "I find you busy as usual." he turned to the Earl. "I came to speak about the children; I will go into the garden until you are at leisure."

The Earl could not say a word, but Max noticed nothing; he was preoccupied. He had almost reached the door when Foster's voice arcested him.

voice arrested him.
"Wait a moment," Mr. Selwyn," he said,
"I fancy I have found something of yours."

"I fancy I have found something of yours."
Max came back.
"Something of mine," he said, "why, what have I lost?"
The detective put his hand in his pocket, took out the little paper packet, and laid it upon the table.
Max recognized it directly; he took it up, opened the packet and kissed the hair inside.
"Thank you, greatly!" he said, taking the detective's land and shaking it heartily. "I am more obliged to you than I can say; it is

We hold aloft the motto "quality" in our treatment of Boy's Clothing as well as Men's. No matter how low the price a garment SUITS, very desirable for that gives poor service is never

In Boys' Knickerbocker Suits we begin at $5. Sometimes a "mark-down" produces a little lower price. At $6, $7 and $8 we have a range of strong, serviceable 18th Street, 19th Street and School Suits that cannot be equalled. Above these are fine, finer, finest Suits for every purpose-with many exclusive novelties. Overcoats, too, in the same Everything that a boy wears is here and our uptown store is intended as a convenience to persons who find that more accessible.

Rogers, Peet & Co.,

BROADWAY AND PRINCE ST ..

BROADWAY AND SED ST.

AMUSEMENTS. H.R.JACOBS'S 3D AVE. THEATRE, Prices, 10c.; Reserved Meats, 20c. and 30c.
SOUVENIN PERSON ANCE, TO MORROW NIGHT,
EDWIN ARDEN IN EAGLE'S NEST.

A positive excess.

Hundreds jurned away.

Oct. 31, JAMES A. HERNES "HEARTS OF OAK." G RAND OPERA-HOUSE. MINSTRELS.
WED THATCHER, PRIMROSE & WEST SAT.
MAT. THATCHER, PRIMROSE & WEST SAT.

WALLACK'S.

WALLACK'S.

ROBERTSON'S BRAUTIFUL COMEDY.
Characters by Messrs. Osmona Tearl
Characters by Messrs. Osmona Tearl
CASTE. Miss Rose Cophian, Miss Ponisi and Abbey. Evenings at 8.15. Matines Saturday, 2.14. BLIOU OPERA HOUSE-SECOND WEEK.

RICE'S BI RI.ESQUE COMPANY
In a Grand Production of the Speciacular Burlesque, CORSAIR.

B. Altman & Co.

Are now disposing of the balance of their

Imported Suits GREATLY

Also

REDUCED PRICES.

Inducements

in their own make and

Three lots of READY-MADE street, house and travelling.

$13.50, $17.50 & $21.00.

Sixth Avenue.

(18th Street Station Elevated Road.)

OUR PRICES ARE GUARANTEED AS REPRESENTED. OUR GOODS ARE THE BEST AND PRICES THE LOWEST AT THE ENGLISH TOPCOATS. ENGLISH MELTON SILK-FACED, $9.47; COST TO WAKE, $16.00.

VERY VINE QUALITY CHINCHILLA, $14.50;
COST TO MAKE, $25.00.
OUR FINER GRADES OF CHINCHILLAS, CASTON BEAVER AND KERSEYS EQUALLY AS LOW IN PRICES.

CONVEYANCE SALE

HEAVY MERING WOOL, 486.; REDUCED FROM A R. MORLEY'S CASHMERE (LIGHT BLUE), REDUCED FROM $1.75.
TREA HEAVY SCOTCH WOOL (WHITE), 88-, 51.18, REDUCED FROM $1.50 AND $2.00.
ST. QUALITY CAMEL'S HAIR, $1.42, REV.

NOTICE.—WE HAVE NO CONNECTION WITH ANY OTHER HOUSE.

5 TH AVE. THEATRE.
LAST FOUR NIGHTS. Matinee Saturday.

**Signature** ANGTRY.

**ACCOMPANIES by MAURICE BARRYMORE and her own company, in her grand production, AS IN A LOOKING-GLASS. Next week—Mrs. Putter Seats now on sale.

TORUM THEATRE, the action of the act and 23d state of the act of the

THALIA TO NIGHT-BORTEL FOR THE FIRST TIME as LYONES in Flotow's Opera MARTHA Wednesday—Junkermann for first time Durchlauchting secret."

"You would compound a felony?"
"I would save the father of the girl my son loves from penal servitude."
"Very well, your Grace, you know best."
He sat down, and Max mounted his horse unmolested. When he got beyond the gates, he laid his head down upon the creature's neck, and the beautiful blue eyes grew dim, "Honc", Honor, my little darling," he whispered, "what have I made your life?"
When Max reached the Hollies, he went at once to his study, turned the key, flung himself into a chair, and was soon deep in thought.

seir into a chair, and was soon deep in thought.

After a time he opened a drawer, took out some papers and looked them through carefully, making some calculations.

"Ten thousand pounds each, as nearly as I can make out," he said, under his breath;

"£10,000 pounds each, honestly earned—it is little enough."

little enough."

Next he burnt a number of papers, watching till all were reduced to a heap of black ashes, then from a drawer he took Honor's album, looked it through, and a little regretfully burnt that, too—the thick covers made a dense black smoke. Honor came to the door. "Papa," she said, "are you setting the

"Not so difficult, perhaps, as you think, Mr. Selwyn," the detective said.

"But, for God's sake!" the Earl exclaimed, "deny it. Think of the children. For their sakes, do not for a moment let such an socusation as this rest upon your head."

For a moment Max's lips quivered, a spasm of pain crossed his face, then it grew calm again.

"I cannot, of course, contradict a gentleman," he said. "I will not stop now; I will talk of the—the children some other time."

He turned towards the door, but Foster barred his way.

"I must request you to stop here," he said.
For a moment the blue eyes were fixed upon the detective.

"You will find me at the Hollies, if you want me," he said, quietly, "I shall not run away. Allow me to pass."
Foster did not move.

"You will not?" Max said; "So much the worse for you."

"He put out his hands, and before the detective knew what was going to happen he was literally hurled to the other end of the room, and Max was for the moment free; but soon on his feet again.

"May I call upon your servants to help me take that man?" he asked the Earl?

"May I call upon your servants to help me take that man?" he asked the Earl?

"May I call upon your servants to help me take that man?" he asked the Earl?

"May I call upon your servants to help me take that man?" he asked the Earl?

"Mo," the Earl answered; "I will give you the door." Papa, "are you setting the house on fire?"

"No, dear," he answered; "no children for the sand drawing some writing paper towards himself began to write. The large hand of the clock travelled slowly round from the took up a pen, dipped it into the ink, and drawing some writing paper towards himself began to write. The large hand of the clock travelled slowly round from the top top to the bottom, from the bottom to the said travelled slowly round from the top top to the bottom, from the bottom to the said travelled slowly round from the top top to the bottom, from the bottom to the said travelled slowly round from the top top top to the bottom, from the bottom to th away, and when he left the room I crept in and verified my suspicions; every name in the book was on my paper.

"Then I started off to the station to try and catch the midnight train, though I confess it never struck me that Selwyr would go by it. I found it gone. I inquired at the station if any one had gone by it, and was told only a husband and wife in a third-class carriage. My informant must have been mistaken; when I reached town the next morning the check had been cashed.

"There is one more thread in the chain of evidence; the lock of hair picked up in the bank bears the date of May 15, 1870. Max Selwyn—I ascertained from the family Bible, when I was there the other day—lost his wife on May 12, the hair, you will remember, was cut off when the body lay in its coffin, which would be a day or two after death." verified my suspicions; every name in The very faintest start, the very slightest change of solor rewarded the detective's bombahell.

"In Clement's Bank?" Max said, quietly:

detective's band and shaking it heartily. "I am more obliged to you than I can say: It is my wife's hair, cut off when she land in her coffin seventeen long, weary years ago. You will laugh at me. I dare say, but I have a pocket made in the inside of all my costs, next my heart, and there I wear a piece of my darling's hair. I would not have lost this for the world!"

He bixed it softly one more unbattered. He kissed it softly once more, unbuttoned me to ask where," Max said, "but still I should like to know."

"I found it in the Western Branch of Clement's Bank,"

"The ways fairly and the said, "but still I secret."

"You would compound a felony?"

"I would save the father of the said way."

"now, however did it get there—let me think."

"now, however did it get there—let me think."

He stood perfectly still, as though really trying to think. The Earl could bear it no longer: he rose and went to his side.

"Selwyn," he said, kindly—"friend, grave charges are to be made against you. Say that they are not true—say that you are not the forger that Foster says you are—that it is not you who have robbed, by a stroke of your pen, so many, many men."

For a moment Selwyn looked at Foster, then back at Eack at the Earl.

"So he is a detective—a human bloodhound, is he?" he said; "well, I half thought so. I think, knowing how much I dislike the breed, you should not have brought him into my house. And he says I am a forger, does he? He will have to prove it, and that will be difficult."

"Not so difficult, perhaps, as you think, Mr. Selwyn," the detective said.

"But, for God's sake!" the Earl exclaimed, "deny it. Think of the children. For their sakes, do not for a moment let such an accusation as this rest upon your head."

For a moment May's line quivered a spage.

"You do not ask where I found it," Foster Since you found it, it never occurred to

NEXT WEEK A BUNCH OF KEYS.

Next Sunday, Prof. Ornewell's New Lacture.

IRELAND AS SEEN BY AMERICAN EYES A CADEMY OF MUSIC. 14th st, and Irving place STH WERK, Evenings at 8. Mat. 8st, at 3. Elaborate production of the latest London Malodrama A DARK SECRET.

Heserved seata, 50c., 75c., 81. Family circle, 25c.